

Individual Recertification Application

ISSA's certifications are valid for a period of two years from the date of completion. Each certification has their specific expiration date located on the bottom of the certificate. To achieve recertification, an individual must accumulate the amount of continuing education credits (CEC) needed during the two-year cycle plus the price of recertification. Continuing education credits for recertification may be accumulated after you obtain your certification. Credits are primarily earned by attending live workshops, ISSA training sessions at the annual North America Show, ISSA webinars although credits may also be earned by participating in various industry activities and events.
